Orange Unified School District Launches Updated Website

ORANGE, Calif., December 1, 2009–The Orange Unified School District is proud to announce the updating of its website. The official launch of the new and improved OUSD website will take place this afternoon at 3:00 pm.

The website's home page has been completely restructured with more accessible resources for teachers, parents, students, staff and community. A number of back pages have been updated and others are currently in development.

"I am hopeful that the Orange Unified community will find our updated website useful in disseminating current information and providing easy access to important news about our school district," said Renae Dreier, Ed.D., Superintendent of Schools for the Orange Unified School District.

The District considers its website a valuable resource for its employees, students and community members. This project was completed utilizing OUSD's in-house expertise without any cost to the District.

The Orange Unified School District's website address remains the same at:
