Bring Your Own Device

Being selected as a “Bring Your Own Device” school has allowed new enrichment to our daily instruction, and student engagement has far exceeded initial expectations. Our students are now working collaboratively to present, extend, and prove their learning in all subject areas. They enjoy the use of technology to communicate their understanding in math and science, and also use discussion boards and presentation websites.

Our students’ ability to gain knowledge through speeches, videos, images, and online articles presents them with information not previously explored in the curriculum. An unexpected benefit is their ability to grow and adapt to the new technologies. This “life skill” will not only help them with the current technology, but also with the technologies yet to be created, and the jobs that their generation will fill.

The depth of knowledge attained by this integration of technology has brought us a welcome new pathway of instruction and learning.
